From 1969 to 1971 Miller Anderson was a member of The Keef Hartley Band with whom he not only played Woodstock festival but also made five albums during that time: "Halfbreed", "Battle of North West Six", "Overdog", "The Time is Now" and "Little Big Band Live". After the release of the last album he left to pursue a solo career recording his first album "Bright City" for Deram Records. He was supported by Gary Thain and Peter Dines from the Hartley Band as well as Mick Weaver (Wynder K Frogg), Junior Campbell from Marmalade, Neil Hubbard from the Grease Band, Lyn Dobson, Eric Dillon, Harold Beckett and Madeline Bell (Blue Mink) with Tracy Miller on backing vocals.

The seven track album was originally released in 1971 and featured "High Tide and High Water" which he later re-recorded for his 2004 album "Bluesheart".

Miller has also played and toured with Savoy Brown, Mountain, T Rex, Donovan, Deep Purple, Jon Lord, Pete York, Spencer Davis Group and his own band. Currently he can be found playing with The Hamburg Blues Band and Jon Lord Blues Project, headed by Pete York after Jon Lord's death.
